solomon bennett freehof 1892 1990 was one of america s most distinguished influential and beloved rabbis ordained at hebrew union college in 1915 he was of the generation of rabbis from east european immigrant backgrounds who moved reform judaism away from its classical form toward a renewed appreciation of traditional practices freehof himself was less interested in restoring discarded rituals than in demonstrating how the reform approach to jewish religious practice was rooted in the jewish legal tradition halakhah opposed to any attempt to create a code of reform practice he nevertheless called for reform judaism to turn to the halakhah not in order to adhere to codified law but to be guided in ritual and in all areas of life by its values and its ethical insights for reform jews jewish law was to offer guidance not governance and this guidance was to be provided through the writing of responsa individual rulings based on legal precedent written by an organized rabbinic authority in response to questions about real life situations after world war ii the earlier consensus about what constituted proper observance in a reform context vanished as the children of east european immigrants flocked to new reform synagogues in new suburbs bringing with them a more traditional sensibility even before freehof was named chairman of the central conference of american rabbis responsa committee in 1956 his colleagues began turning to him for guidance especially in the situations freehof recognized as inevitably arising from living in an open society where the boundaries between what was jewish and what was not were ambiguous or blurred over nearly five decades he answered several thousand inquiries regarding jewish practice the plurality of which concerned the tensions jews experienced in navigating this open society questions concerning mixed marriage jewish status non jewish participation in the synagogue conversion and so on and published several hundred of these in eight volumes of reform responsa in her pioneering study friedman analyzes freehof s responsa on a select number of crucial issues that illustrate the evolution of american reform judaism she also discusses the deeper issues with which the movement struggled and continues to struggle in its attempt to meet the ever changing challenges of the present while preserving both individual autonomy and faithfulness to the jewish tradition

This article will guide you through the process, explaining not only the conversion but also the reasons behind it and providing practical examples to solidify your understanding.

Understanding Inches and Centimeters: A Historical Perspective

Before diving into the conversion, let's briefly examine the origins of inches and centimeters. The inch, a unit of length in the imperial system, traces its roots back to ancient civilizations. Its definition has evolved over time, eventually becoming standardized as 1/36 of a yard. The centimeter, on the other hand, belongs to the metric system, a decimal system based on multiples of ten. The meter, the base unit of length in the metric system, was originally defined as one ten-millionth of the distance from the North Pole to the Equator along a meridian passing through Paris. The centimeter, being one-hundredth of a meter, directly reflects the metric system's emphasis on easy calculation and universal standardization. This difference in historical development explains why converting between the two systems isn't as simple as multiplying by a whole number. Instead, it involves a constant conversion factor that precisely links the two systems.

The Conversion Factor: Linking Inches and Centimeters

The key to converting 58 inches to centimeters is the conversion factor: 1 inch is approximately equal to 2.54 centimeters. This is not an exact relationship, but a highly accurate approximation widely accepted for most practical purposes. The slight discrepancy stems from the differences in the historical definitions of the inch and the meter. Now, to convert 58 inches to centimeters, we simply multiply the number of inches by the conversion factor: $58 \text{ inches} \times 2.54 \text{ centimeters/inch} \approx 147.32 \text{ centimeters}$. Therefore, 58 inches is approximately equal to 147.32 centimeters.
